Central Ohio Fine Art Photographer Don Scott Earns Professional Recognition as Certified Photographic Consultant

COLUMBUS OH—Central Ohio fine art photographer Don Scott recently earned his certification as a fully-accredited professional photographic consultant from the Society of Certified Photographic Consultants. The highest professional recognition in the photographic and digital imaging industry, the Certified Photographic Consultant designation is awarded after completing a rigorous two-part examination program.

Now primarily focusing on creating his original photographic monoprints and Polaroid® image transfers and manipulations, Scott has used the camera since the age of ten as a means of creative expression. To create his original photographic monoprints, Scott prints on a variety of substrates, then alters and enhances each print individually, using a broad assortment of media, including acrylics, oil sticks, pastels and pencils.

Formerly a marketing communications executive in the broadcasting industry for more than 20 years, Scott has exhibited widely in many group shows and competitions, earning Best-in-Show and Purchase awards among others. His works are in a number of private and corporate collections nationwide.

As a Certified Photographic Consultant, Scott will continue his fine art photography, expanding into infrared and black-and-white work, as he begins an instructional workshop program. His first workshop on Polaroid® image transfers is scheduled for March 2007.
